It is, however, more comprehensive than that. It is also a collection of many names of weapons, ships, aircraft, vehicles, important but obscure personalities, easily forgotten places, partially remembered incidents, NATO designations, and other nomenclature and titles about which some helpful bit of information may be found. Indeed, ZIP Code two-letter designations for all the States of the Union are included in case the need arises to complete an address or to recognize one. Some entries are no more than a duplication of information appearing elsewhere. Others, however, are more enlightening because they provide a key to material further describing a LIST entry. The latter type is often a multiple entry which points to a variety of descriptive information found in more than one cited source.

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of the LIST is to provide answers, or partial answers, to often expressed questions about the meanings of acronyms and other abbreviations in common use throughout the Department of Defense. Use of the LIST will not guarantee a successful conclusion of any search, however.

The LIST is greater than an indexed compilation of acronyms and abbreviations, their meanings, and where to find information about them. It is also a collection of names of weapons, ships, aircraft, vehicles, important but obscure personalities, easily forgotten places, partially remembered incidents, NATO designations, and other nomenclature and titles, about which some helpful bit of information can be found. Indeed, ZIP code two-letter abbreviations for all the States of the Union are included in case of need to complete an address or to recognize one. Some entries are no more than a duplication of information appearing elsewhere. Others, however, are more enlightening because they provide a key to reference material further describing a particular LIST entry. The latter type is often a multiple entry which points to various bits of descriptive information found in more than one reference. References of Navy origin, or of Navy interest, predominate, inasmuch as the LIST originated in the Navy Division, DFOISR, OASD(PA). Pertinent entries originating in, or of interest to, other Services or Department of Defense Agencies have been entered wherever readily available.

NOTES

1. Information on weapons, weapons systems, ancillary equipment, etc. may be recorded in the ACRONYM LIST by a "MARK" number. If the number is known, search for "MK-" followed by the digits given. Thus, for the MARK-48 torpedo, search for "MK-48".

2. Joint electronics type designations appear in the ACRONYM LIST without the "AN/", the first two letters and slash mark. Therefore, AN/SQR-19 would be recorded thus: "SQR-19".

3. Because the ACRONYM LIST gradually becomes outdated, information taken from an entry might not always be current. It should be checked against the latest information available. For instance, an entry citing a document from a prior fiscal year should be compared with information in the companion document from the most recent fiscal year, if one exists.

4. Space does not permit a citation of all page references of a document appearing as a source of information concerning a particular entry in the ACRONYM LIST. Only the more important are recorded. Consult the document's index, if one has been prepared.

5. In many instances, the Long Titles associated with acronyms have been abbreviated in order that they might fit on a single line in the space provided. If the Long Title associated with a particular acronym or abbreviation cannot be discerned readily, consult the reference which is cited.

6. An entry under the heading PAGE NO., which is peculiar to an RDT&EN Descriptive Summary reference, is recorded as a parenthetically enclosed single digit number and a dash followed by a five digit number and a letter, thus: "(4-63215N)". In this case, the "4" signifies Budget Activity 4, the "63215" signifies a project element, and the "N", Navy. To locate a reference in an RDT&EN Descriptive Summary, first find the Budget Activity Number, then the Project Element number.

7. Some acronyms are too long to fit under the ACRONYM heading, so parts of them may be found under LONG TITLE. Wherever such entries occur, the latter portion of the acronym will appear in parentheses at the beginning of the entry under LONG TITLE.
